Summary

The thirty-fifth session of the Commission on Population and Development was held at United Nations Headquarters from 1 to 5 April 2002. Its central theme was reproductive rights and reproductive health, with special reference to human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS).

The documents before the Commission included a report on world population monitoring, focusing on the theme of the session. The report provided recent information on selected aspects of reproductive rights and reproductive health, covering topics such as: entry into reproductive life; reproductive behaviour; family planning; abortion; maternal mortality and morbidity; sexually transmitted infections; HIV/AIDS; and reproductive rights. Other reports covered the intersessional meeting of the Bureau of the Commission; monitoring of population programmes focusing on reproductive rights and reproductive health, with special reference to HIV/AIDS, as contained in the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development; the flow of financial resources for assisting in the implementation of the Programme of Action; and programme implementation and progress of work in the field of population in 2001.

The Commission considered follow-up actions to the recommendations of the International Conference on Population and Development and adopted a resolution concerning reproductive rights and reproductive health, including HIV/AIDS. In that resolution, the Commission requested the Population Division of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the Secretariat to continue its research and requested the United Nations Population Fund to continue its programming on reproductive rights and reproductive health, in close collaboration with each other and with all other relevant funds, programmes and agencies of the United Nations system. It also requested the Population Division, in collaboration with the Joint United Nations Programme on Human Immunodeficiency Virus/Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (HIV/AIDS) (UNAIDS) and other relevant funds, programmes and agencies, to strengthen its work on the demographic aspects and impact of HIV/AIDS. It further requested that the Population Division incorporate the findings from that and other relevant research on reproductive rights and reproductive health, including the interrelationship with HIV/AIDS, in its contribution to the next review and appraisal of the implementation of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development scheduled for 2004 and, to the extent appropriate, to the annual reviews of the Declaration of Commitment on HIV/AIDS as well as to any other relevant processes.

The Commission approved the draft provisional agenda for its thirty-sixth session, to be held in New York from 31 March to 4 April 2003, and adopted its report on its thirty-fifth session.
